Things to do in Porto city

Porto city is one of the oldest tourist destinations in Europe and the richness of its artistic and historic heritage, the Porto Wine, the huge spaces dedicated to leisure and its cultural life are just some of the reasons that invite you to visit the city. The Historic Centre of Porto has been a World Heritage Site since 1996 and its landscape setting and the sinuous layout of its streets give it a unique beauty. Below are some suggestions to get to know our city.

Aliados Avenue

Aliados Avenue is the centre and the heart of Porto. At the top of this avenue is the beautiful building that is Porto's town hall.

S. Bento Train Station

It is one of the most beautiful tourist attractions in the city. The exterior of São Bento station is already eye-catching, but a visit to its interior allows you to appreciate the more than 20 thousand hand-painted tiles representing the history of Portugal, especially the history of the north of the country.

Santa Catarina Street

This is the most commercial street in Porto and one of the busiest places in the city - much of the street is reserved for pedestrians.

Clérigos Tower

The Clérigos tower is considered the city's ex-libris.

With a height of 76 metres, it is the highest tower in the country and offers visitors one of the best views over the historic centre, the Douro River and the Porto wine cellars.

Bolhão Market

Built in 1914 to welcome the merchants of Oporto until then scattered in various parts of the city, the Bolhão Market is still an important place to visit. You will find florists and many fresh products such as fish, meat, fruits and vegetables.

Porto Sé Cathedral

The construction of the Cathedral began at the beginning of the 12th century and was only completed during the 13th century. This cathedral was fortified to protect the city from invaders.

Ribeira

The Ribeira area is part of the historic centre of the city of Porto, classified by UNESCO as World Heritage since 1996. Ribeira is perhaps the most emblematic district of this city. From the Ribeira pier you can admire the Douro River and the Luís I bridge, built by the engineer Théophile Seyrig, a disciple of Gustave Eiffel.

Lello Bookshop

Considered one of the most beautiful bookshops in the world, the Lello Bookshop inspired J.K. Rowling to write Harry Potter. Inside, in addition to the books, it is possible to admire a unique environment where the imposing staircase to the top floor rises.

Porto Wine Cellars

On the other side of the Douro River, in Vila Nova de Gaia, there are more than 50 Porto wine cellars. These cellars are in the top of the places to visit in Porto due to their historical. Many cellars can be visited with the right to taste several Port wines.
